'I found the summer school a great way to enrich my knowledge in the complex and evolving field of climate change law. The program featured lectures from experts in various scientific disciplines and included visits to the Croatian Central Bank, CMS law firm, Croatian Meteorological and Hydrological Service, private company DOK-ING and more. This multidisciplinary approach and attention to the smallest details in the organisation set this summer school apart from others.'

'Participating in the first Zagreb Law Summer School was an amazing experience. The lectures were engaging and offered insights into fields beyond just law, the professors were exceptional, and the diverse, well-planned activities added to the experience. Connecting with wonderful participants from around the world made it even more memorable. I can't wait for the next one!'

'Although I live and work in Zagreb, participating in this summer school gave me the opportunity to visit institutions and places in Zagreb that I most likely would not have had the opportunity to see otherwise. Even more than that, the summer school opened up new horizons, informed me about the significance that climate change represents and motivated me to now continue researching this field on my own. In conclusion, I spent two weeks in the company of great young people and excellent lecturers while having a great time.'
