Course Catalogue

2026/2027

Faculty of Law

University of Zagreb

https://www.pravo.unizg.hr/en/international-cooperation/incoming/

CONTENT

WINTER SEMESTER 5

1. Law Courses 6
2. Social Work Courses 61

SUMMER SEMESTER 63

1. Law courses 64
2. Social Work Courses 97

Student Office

Contact the Student Office if you have any questions regarding student exchange, courses and Learning Agreements.

email: erasmus@pravo.hr

tel. +385 1 4564 305

Academic Calendar 2026/2027

https://www.pravo.unizg.hr/en/international-cooperation/incoming/before-mobility/academic-calendar/

The lecture schedule for the 1st (winter) semester 2026/2027 will be determined in September of 2026.

The lecture schedule for the 2nd (summer) semester 2026/2027 will be determined in February of 2027.

Horizontal Mobility

https://www.pravo.unizg.hr/en/international-cooperation/incoming/before-mobility/horizontal-mobility/

If you are an incoming student at one of the faculties of the University of Zagreb and you are interested in attending courses at the Faculty of Law of the University of Zagreb during your exchange, here is important information:

1. BEFORE coming to the University of Zagreb for your study mobility period, you need to contact the Student Office directly at erasmus@pravo.hr with a request to attend courses at the Faculty of Law through Horizontal Mobility.

NOTE: Do not contact the professors directly but the Student Office and wait for a response.

2. You will be notified whether or not your request for registration for the respective course via Horizontal Mobility is approved.

3. The general condition for the Horizontal Mobility is that the ratio of selected courses in ECTS credits is 70:30 in favor of the main receiving institution at the University of Zagreb.

UNIC Online Language Modules

If you are interested in learning Croatian language, check out the digital self-study courses for beginners on https://www.unic.eu/en/online-language-modules

Module Certificate

Criminal Law and Criminal Procedure Law Module

A Certificate of successful completion of the Criminal Law and Criminal Procedure Law Module is obtained by enrolling in at least three courses per semester and acquiring at least 12 ECTS credits.

- In Winter Semester: Bioethics and Human Rights, Comparative Criminal Law, International Criminal Law, International Criminal Procedure, Transitional Justice
- In Summer Semester: Comparative Criminology, Criminal Law of the European Union, Economic Criminal Law, Introduction to Croatian Criminal Justice System, Victimology

Human Rights and Democracy in Contemporary Societies Module

A Certificate of successful completion of the Human Rights and Democracy in Contemporary Societies Module is obtained by enrolling in at least three courses per semester and acquiring at least 12 ECTS credits.

- In Summer Semester: Introduction to Democracy, Rights of Minorities in Europe, Sociology of Croatian Society, Women's Rights

Module in European Public Law

A Certificate of successful completion of the Module in European Public Law is obtained by enrolling in at least three courses per semester and acquiring at least 12 ECTS credits.

- In Winter Semester: EU Climate Change Law, EU Constitutional Law, EU Gender Equality Law, EU Migration and Asylum Law, European Public Law – Seminar
- In Summer Semester: EU Internal Market Law, Fundamental Rights in the European Union, Jurisdiction and Role of the European Court of Justice

WINTER SEMESTER

1. LAW COURSES

Alternative Dispute Resolution

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Alan Uzelac

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Marko Bratković

dr. sc.
Juraj Brozović

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79152

Exam: oral

Contact email:
alan.uzelac@pravo.hr
marko.bratkovic@pravo.hr
juraj.brozovic@pravo.hr

Course Description

This course aims to explore the whole continuum of dispute resolution methods and techniques which may be a replacement for civil litigation, such as negotiations, mediation and conciliation (with a number of intermediary forms) and arbitration. The students will be acquainted with the general theory of non-judicial dispute resolution as an alternative to the proceedings within the institutions of the state justice system, and will learn their main characteristics and special features of the individual methods of alternative dispute resolution (ADR). In the course the students will have an opportunity to analyze and interpret the law of arbitration and mediation at a national level (e.g. Croatian law and the law in the region). However, special attention is also devoted to new trends related to the use of ADR at a European and international level.

Anti-discrimination Employment Law and Social Security Law

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc.
Ivana Grgurev

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 86044

Exam: oral or written essay with presentation (student can choose)

Contact email: ivana.grgurev@pravo.hr

Course Description

In the introduction to the course the international sources of anti-discrimination law as well as the sources of anti-discrimination law of the Council of Europe are explained. However, the focus of the course is on the understanding of concepts of equality and non-discrimination in the EU law. Therefore, the course deals with the following topics: Development of EU law and policy on equality; The Key Terms (Direct discrimination; Indirect discrimination; Harassment; Sexual Harassment; Justifications, Formal and Substantive Equality, etc.); Non-discrimination on prohibited grounds (race, gender, sexual orientation, religion and belief, disability, age); Remedies; Family friendly policies; Equal treatment in social security; Discrimination in Digital Era (AI and Discrimination).

Bioethics and Human Rights

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Ksenija Turković

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Aleksandar Maršavelski

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79153

Exam: oral or written (optional)

Contact email:
ksenija.turkovic@pravo.hr
aleksandar.marsavelski@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course examines bioethical problems that are of relevance to legal field and, by bringing these problems in relation to human rights, it involves analysis of the development of moral and bioethical argument about the development of health law in particular countires, regions and the world. The course begins with an overview of the health system and its constitutional and legislative framework. Emphasis is placed on the concepts of the right to health, pandemics/epidemics, medical ethics, patients' rights and efficiency and safety in health care, AI, abortion, euthanasia, organ traffickings, gene manipulation etc.While dealing with different topics, the major task of the course is to learn to apply the bioethical theories to practical cases. In the same vain, to criticaly analyse the role of international organizations, states, legal entities and individuals concerning the right to heath and the access to healthcare.

Civil Procedure and Critical Reading of ECtHR and CJEU Case Law

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Marko Bratković

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 248949

Exam: oral

Contact email: marko.bratkovic@pravo.hr

Course Description

National civil procedural law, both at the legislative level as well as in application in courts, has been widely influenced by the case law of the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR) and the Court of Justice of the European Union (CJEU). However, it is not always easy to assess whether the decisions of those courts also apply to domestic civil procedural rules, especially if the national law concerned in the rulings of the Court in Strasbourg and the CJEU is (somewhat) different from domestic law. Therefore, it seems appropriate to offer a course in which students could deepen their knowledge and competences acquired during legal studies, especially in the courses on civil procedure, EU law, constitutional law, and criminal procedure. Critical reading of selected decisions of the Court in Strasbourg and the CJEU will additionally train students for their proper understanding and independent critical reading. This will also raise awareness of the importance of regular monitoring of the case law of the European Court of Human Rights and the CJEU in order to properly apply the national rules of civil procedure.

Comparative Civil Procedure

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Alan Uzelac

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Marko Bratković

dr. sc.
Juraj Brozović

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 84046

Exam: oral

Contact email:
alan.uzelac@pravo.hr
marko.bratkovic@pravo.hr
juraj.brozovic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The students will acquire knowledge about the radically different ways in which legal traditions conceive litigation in civil cases. They will learn to think about the difficulties of model presentation and question the accuracy of the accustomed schemes, e.g. the common and civil law divide. The students are going to enhance their understanding of the particular structural elements that are combined together in order to form a specific procedural flavour.

Comparative Criminal Law

Lecturers

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Aleksandar Maršavelski

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Marta Dragičević Prtenjača

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 159422

Exam: oral

Contact email:
aleksandar.marsavelski@pravo.hr
marta.dragicevic@pravo.hr

Course Description

Comparative Criminal Law is a field of study that examines criminal law systems across different countries and jurisdictions, and compares their approaches to crime and punishment. This course provides an in-depth exploration of the principles and practices of criminal law in various legal systems, with a special focus on the United States and Europe. Throughout the course, students will analyze and compare the key concepts of criminal law, such as the elements of a crime, the criminal liability of individuals and organizations, and the different types of punishments and sentencing schemes. They will also examine the various legal and cultural factors that shape criminal law systems, such as historical and political contexts, cultural values and norms, and the role of the judiciary and law enforcement agencies. By the end of the course, students will have a comprehensive understanding of the similarities and differences between criminal law systems in different countries, and be able to critically evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of different approaches to criminal justice. They will also develop skills in legal analysis, comparative research, and critical thinking, which will be valuable for a range of careers in law, public policy, and international affairs.

Consumer Protection

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Marko Baretić

prof. dr. sc.
Saša Nikšić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79157

Contact email:
marko.baretic@pravo.hr
sasa.niksic@pravo.unizg.hr

Course Description

This course is primarily developed for foreign students who participate in the ERASMUS exchange programme. Students of the Faculty of law of the University of Zagreb can as well enrol the course as an elective subject within the 9th semester of Master of law study. After successfully finishing the course students are expected to gain a general knowledge on the consumer protection law in the European Union, notably its main features, sources of law, regulation techniques and specific provisions. They should be able to enumerate main rights of consumers, main sources of law of consumer protection, fields of protection and main features of consumer protection regulation. Furthermore, students are expected to be able to detect different modalities of judicial and alterative protection of consumer rights. Finally, after successfully finishing the course students are expected to acquire specific knowledge which will help them in solving practical problems.

Criminal Law of the European Union

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc.
Zlata Đurđević

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79162

Exam: oral

Contact email:
zlata.durdevic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course looks into the competences of the European Union in the area of criminal law. For a long time, criminal law has been considered an issue which falls within the exclusive competence of the Member States of the EU. However, during the historical development of the European integration process, it became obvious that it is necessary for the EU to have competences in the area of criminal law, if it wants to ensure effective application of its policies in matters which fall within its competence. The course looks at the current competences of the EU in the area of criminal law, with particular focus on judicial cooperation in criminal matters, harmonization of national criminal laws and and EU institutions established in the area.

Cybersecurity and Cybecrime

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Nina Gumzej

izv. prof.dr.sc.
Marko Jurić

izv. prof.dr.sc.
Tihomir Katulić

prof. dr. sc.
Hrvoje Lisičar

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 139573

Exam: oral

Contact email:
nina.gumzej@pravo.hr
marko.juric@pravo.hr
tihomir.katulic@pravo.hr
hrvoje.lisicar@pravo.hr

Course Description

Cybersecurity is an issue which transcends legal regulation. Its achievement depends on the proper implementation and use of a series of technical, procedural, organizational and legal measures. On the other side, fighting cybercrime is becoming an increasingly important task of legal science and legislation, in terms of prevention, detection and repression. However, there is also a need to reconcile the effectiveness of cybercrime prosecution with the need to ensure fulfillment of fundamental human rights.

Development of European Integration and Institutions

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Zrinka Erent-Sunko

doc. dr. sc.
Ivan Obadić

doc. dr. sc.
Miran Marelja

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 97213

Exam: oral and written

Contact email:
zrinka.erent.sunko@pravo.hr
ivan.obadic@pravo.hr
mmarelja@pravo.hr

Course Description

This course examines the origins and development of European integration since the turn of the 20th century. The first section of the course considers the antecedents of integration before 1914 and in the Interwar period. It provides a comparative basis for the second part, which focuses on the decade between the Marshall Plan and the Treaties of Rome. The final part of the course deals with the European Communities from their foundation until the Treaty of Maastricht and the evolution and role of the European Union law and institutions in the European Integration process. Through examining the key moments in the political and institutional development of European integration, students will gain a comprehensive and systematic understanding of the history of the EU and better insight into contemporary political and economic relations in Europe, the EU legal system and the process of decision making in the European Union.

Development of International Law

Lecturers

doc. dr. sc.
Rutvica Rusan Novokmet

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Henrik-Riko Held

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 86140

Exam: oral

Contact email:
rutvica.rusan@pravo.hr
henrik.riko.held@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course tends to provide an overview of the historical development of international law through the analysis of legal doctrine and basic concepts of international law throughout history (antiquity, middle ages, early modern period and contemporary period). Recent tendencies in the development of international law are also analyzed with particular emphasis on the codification of international law under the auspices of the United Nations.

Economic Analysis of Law

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Nenad Rančić

prof. dr. sc.
Ozren Pilipović

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 150199

Exam: oral

Contact email:
nenad.rancic@pravo.hr
ozren.pilipovic@pravo.hr

Course Description

Introduction to key theories, concepts, tools of economic analysis of law, as well as investigation into their relevance to contemporary social and legal issues, by examining the key components of national and international legal systems, with the focus on differences between american and european approach to the same issues. Although certain important and rather complex economic issues are discussed during the course, it does not require a background in economics. Rather, the course aims to help in understanding the nature of the relationship between the law and the economics in the evolution of contemporary legal systems. The course is built with a balance of historical and theoretical approaches in the study of practical issues, such as transaction costs, externalities, competition,game theory, welfare state and public choice theory.

The aims of this course are:

To examine critically and to give students an insight into the methods and tools of economic analysis of law by which it could assess the impact of the legal system to the economic well-being of individual members of society, as well as the community as a whole, with special emphasis on the sources and the effectiveness of the application of law in countries in transition. Finally, in addition to transmitting knowledge, the goal is to develop students capacity for analytical thinking and problem-solving approach to research the effects of legal norms and the award and provide them with the theoretical tools to help them assess their economic efficiency and impact.

Economy and Institutions of EU

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Nenad Rančić

prof. dr. sc.
Ozren Pilipović

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 133426

Exam: oral

Contact email:
nenad.rancic@pravo.hr
ozren.pilipovic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The main objective of this course is to introduce students to the economic aspect of selected EU institutions, the scope of their activities, institutional organization as well as the rules and regulation relevant to their existence and activities Teaching units: History of European integration, Institutions of EU, History of EU monetary integration, ECB, EU competition policy, Monopoly, Oligopoly, Monopolistic competition, Environmental policy of EU, EU regional policy, Common agricultural policy, Social Policy, EU budget, EU Energy policy.

Electronic Media Law

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc. Hrvoje Lisičar

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 117233

Exam: oral or written

Contact email: hrvoje.lisicar@pravo.hr

Course Description

Teaching units of course are: 1. Introduction: historical development, sources and competences, meaning and importance of electronic media, various aspects of regulation of electronic media, 2. Development of electronic media in the context of information society, influence of high technologies on electronic media development, 3.Convergence of technology, various forms of convergence, influence of convergence on legal framework for electronic media, technological neutrality of legislation for electronic media, 4. Regulatory framework for electronic communications in the EU and Republic of Croatia - basic principles, terms, regulation of technical foundations for broadcasting of electronic media (frequencies, IPTV, universal access, interconnections), 5. Digital dividend and net neutrality - influence on regulation of electronic media services, 6. Regulatory framework for electronic media - comparative analysis of EU and Croatian legislation, 7.Audiovisual media services (linear services) and audiovisual media services on demand (non-linear services), different tiers of rules, 8.Legal regulation of electronic publications as defined in Croatian Electronic media Act, comparative analysis of different approaches in regulation of electronic media content on the Internet, 9.Audiovisual media services regulatory bodies, real and formal independency, various functions of regulatory bodies, 10. Pluralism and diversity of electronic media in information society, importance of pluralism and influence of new technologies, 11. Legal protection of broadcasting, conditional access, aggregation of content, 12. Electronic media and right to privacy, protection of personal data in electronic media, how new technologies influence freedom of speech.

English for Lawyers V

Lecturer

dr. sc.
Marijana Javornik-Čubrić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 94368

Exam: oral

Contact email: marijana.javornik.cubric@pravo.hr

Course Description

English for Law V is an elective advanced course. Judicial decisions of English courts and judgements of the European Court of Human Rights are analyzed. Topics from civil, criminal and international law are discussed. The knowledge of English law of contract and related terminology is applied in the analysis of Carlyll v. Carbolic Smoke Ball Co. English criminal law and terminology is outlined in the analysis of ECHR judgment Tyrer v UK. International law and terminology is outlined in the analysis of The Rainbow Warrior. Various judgments of the ECHR are analyzed. The focus is on legal terminology, written and oral communication skills and understanding the structure and style of legal texts. Different reading strategies are acquired.

EU Climate Change Law

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Melita Carević Nožica

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 239390

Exam: written, oral

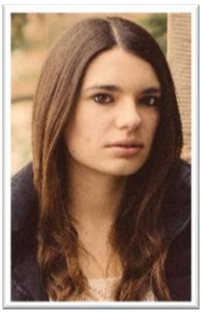

Contact email: melita.carevic@pravo.hr

Course Description

This course is aimed at students interested in exploring climate change governance in the European Union and its influence on global standard setting. It covers a broad range of topics which are crucial for understanding the current climate change regime – the scientific basis for regulation, the actors responsible for the development of climate change legislation in the EU, the EU legislative framework with the special focus on the Emission Trading Scheme, the European Green Deal, the proposed Border Carbon Adjustment mechanism and the renewable energy policy, as well as the EU's role in global climate change governance and the impact of climate change on migration. The course will strive to improve students' problem identification and solving skills in an environment which fosters critical debate. Having taken the course, the students will be able to identify and assess the development of climate change law and policy in the EU.

EU Constitutional Law

Lecturer

doc. dr. sc.
Nika Bačić Selanec

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 239537

Exam: written

Contact email: nika.bacic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course aims to examine the constitutional structure of the European Union, its gradual development through the European integration and the crucial role of the Court of Justice of the EU within that process. Its interactive lectures based on a case-study method will examine the EU's most intriguing constitutional features, such as the principles of direct effect and supremacy; the EU's supranationality and EU federalism; balancing the expansion of EU competences with the retained competences of the Member States; the use of general principles of EU law in CJEU's judicial lawmaking; or EU fundamental rights protection and EU citizenship beyond the market rationale. The course will critically engage with these interesting features of EU law, as well as the complexities arising out of the Union's unique supranationality and its (contested) federal and constitutional nature. By emphasizing the necessity of a methodological approach to the law, the course will lead students to understand the importance of legal interpretation, in general, and engage with the constitutional methods of legal reasoning employed by the Court of Justice when interpreting EU law, in particular.

EU Gender Equality Law

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc.
Snježana Vasiljević

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 248953

Exam: written

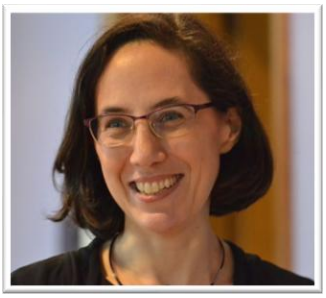

Contact email: snjezana.vasiljevic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course delivers tailor-made courses on specific EU gender equality issues relevant for students in their academic and future professional life. It is highly relevant that the Zagreb Faculty of Law offers a course which provides teaching in the form of live and online lectures which offer comprehensive education on EU law and gender equality and provide in depth analysis of EU gender equality norms. The course creates interest in EU gender equality and addresses the issue of its (in)adequate implementation at national level. Law students and lawyers represent important facilitators for the successful implementation of the EU gender equality law and policy. There is a need to increase the number of lawyers dealing with gender discrimination issues in legal profession and public administration, as well as prepare them for strategic litigation in front of national courts and active role in preliminary rulining procedure in front of the Court of Justice of the EU.

EU Migration and Asylum Law

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc.
Iris Goldner Lang

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 239391

Exam: written

Contact email: iris.goldner@pravo.hr

Course Description

One of the main phenomena and challenges the EU is facing nowadays is migration. The course EU Migration Law and Policy focuses on the functioning of EU migration, asylum and border controls law and discusses the most burning issues in these areas in the EU. The course approaches these topics by simultaneously taking into consideration their gradual politization and securatization, as well as the importance of protecting human rights in the context of EU migration law.

European Administrative Space

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Goranka Lalić Novak

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Romea Manojlović Toman

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 5

Course code: 142166

Exam: written

Contact email:
goranka.lalic@pravo.hr
romea.manojlovic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The aim of the course is to introduce the students to the development, processes, methods and institutions of the European Union, with the emphasis on the executive and administrative aspects. The notion of European Administrative Space will be presented and discussed. Also, the course aims to introduce students to the impact of the European integration on the administrative reforms in national states.

European and International Cooperation in Criminal Matters

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Zlata Đurđević

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Marin Bonačić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 160359

Exam: oral and written essay

Contact email:
zlata.durdevic@pravo.hr
marin.bonacic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The main objective of the course is to introduce students to the mechanisms of criminal law enforcement in a modern globalized setting.The objectives of the course are to help students understand the reasons for such development, introduce them to mechanisms of European and international cooperation in criminal matters, their subjects, principles and procedures, and teach them how to interpret and apply these mechanisms properly.

European Fiscal Law

Lecturer

doc. dr. sc.
Irena Klemenčić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 239389

Exam: Written and oral

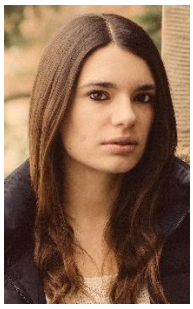

Contact email:
irena.klemencic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The aim of the course European Fiscal Law is to introduce students who have previous knowledge in tax/fiscal law with rules and concepts of European tax and budget law as well as with the sources of funding of the EU and modalities of funds allocation. The students will learn about the rules on harmonization of tax systems with the emphasis on the differences between harmonizing direct and indirect taxes. Harmonized rules on VAT, excise duties as well as corporate income taxation will be discussed. The students will be presented with the overview of EU rules against tax evasion and tax avoidance as well as the EU efforts in fighting tax havens, rules on administrative cooperation and mutual agreement procedures. Some of the most important ECJ judgements in European tax law cases will be analyzed. Apart from the tax topics, the EU Budget is also an important part of the course syllabus. The students will be introduced to the sources of EU's own revenues as well as features and structure of the EU budget and purposes for which the funds may be allocated. Furthermore, the most important EU fiscal rules will be discussed. After covering the most important tax and budget topics, the effects of the European legislation on the Croatian tax and budget system as well as on tax and budget systems of selected EU Member States will be analyzed.

European Public Law – Seminar

Lecturer

doc. dr. sc.
Nika Bačić Selanec

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 259854

Exam: Written

Contact email:
nika.bacic@pravo.hr

Course Description

This seminar will focus on:
Definition of fundamental concepts and legal problems of EU law.
History and theories of European integration.
Sources of EU law.
European Union institutions.
EU law and national law.
Market freedoms.
European citizenship.
Protection of fundamental rights in the European Union.
EU and international agreements.

Foundation of European Private Law

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Igor Gliha

prof. dr. sc.
Tatjana Josipović

prof. dr. sc.
Marko Baretić

prof. dr. sc.
Saša Nikšić

prof. dr. sc. Romana Matanovac Vučković

prof. dr. sc.
Hano Ernest

dr. sc.
Marko Stilinović

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79164

Exam: written and oral

Contact email:
igor.gliha@pravo.hr
tatjana.josipovic@pravo.hr
marko.baretic@pravo.hr
sasa.niksic@pravo.hr romana.matanovac.vuckovic@pravo.hr hano.ernst@pravo.hr
marko.stilinovic@pravo.unizg.hr

Course Description

Private law, as a branch of law governing the legal status and mutual relations of free and equal individuals, is an extremely important area of harmonization of the laws of the Member States of the European Union.

The aim of the course is to introduce all students to the specifics of private law in the European Union. During the course, special emphasis shall be placed on the application of EU law in the area of private law relationships and thereto-related contentious issues arising in harmonization of national private law with EU law. The course deals with those areas of private law, which are particularly developed by the EU law, such as contract law, copyright, liability for damages, consumer contract law, remedies, etc. Furthermore, particular emphasis is placed on the function of private law for the development of the digital market by addressing topics related to electronic formation of contracts, blockchain technology, use of platforms for formation of contracts, etc.

The course will prepare you to master the terminology used in EU private law, it shall familiarize you with the legal sources of EU private law, the specific principles of EU private law, the case law of the Court of Justice, and it shall help you understand the process of harmonization of European law as well as current problems in harmonization.

French for Lawyers

Lecturer: external associate from the French Embassy in Zagreb

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 171160

Exam: written exam, attendance, presentations

Contact email: irena.horvatic.bilic@pravo.hr

Course Description

Are you a future lawyer and do you speak good French? This module is made for you if you want to know more about French political and judicial life; if you want to understand cases and trials in French; if you want to improve your argumentation and presentation skills and have a try at pleading for someone à la française!

The course is open for all interested students, whose general knowledge of French language is at least on the level B2.

German for Lawyers V

Lecturer

doc. dr. sc.
Irena Horvatić Bilić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 94370

Exam: presentation and written essay

Contact email:
irena.horvatic.bilic@pravo.hr

Course Description

This elective course is structured as a follow-up course, the fifth course, after having attended four mandatory courses of German language of law in the first and second year of studies. However, the course is open for all other interested domestic and Erasmus students, whose general knowledge of German language is at least on the level B2. Starting from basic knowledge about legal systems in German speaking countries and from key legal terms in German, the aim of the course is to provide students with the opportunity of analysing original legal documents in the German language, such as contracts, cases, laws and other regulations. Through the analysis of authentic text students gain an insight into their structure, style and use in the context of different legal businesses.

Working on such authentic sources, students expand their knowledge of different fields of law, such as: contract law, copyright law, company law and European law. The following topics are discussed within the course: founding a limited liability company in German and Croatian legal system, based on the authentic document of articles of association in German. The discussion about copyright law starts from an authentic contract regulating rights of translation, and it also includes potential violations of copyright law in the field of music and photography. The source for the work on an authentic piece of legislation is German civil code (Buergerliches Gesetzbuch - BGB), which is used for short translation exercises and for interpretation of single provisions. Analysis of judgements of the Court of Justice of European Union enables the comparison of different versions of the same authentic document in German, Croatian and English. When Erasmus students take part in the course there is a wonderful possibility for a direct exchange of experience and for the comparison of entire legal systems as well as specific legal institutes. The obligation of the students is to regularly attend classes and to prepare for active participation based on provided materials. The concluding assignment is to prepare and individual paper, supported by a power-point presentation and a handout with the main elements of the chosen legal topic for other course participants.

History of economic thought-theory and doctrine

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc.
Nenad Rančić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 201649

Exam: Written essay on a chosen topic and presentation

Contact email:
nenad.rancic@pravo.hr

Course Description

In this course participants will gain an overview of the main schools of economic thought from the middle ages till the present day, as well as the most important cultural, political and legal impacts that they have had on the society at large. Introduction to key economic theories, concepts and ideas, as well as investigation into their relevance to contemporary social and political issues on a local, national and global scale, by examining the key components of national and international economic systems. Although certain basic and important economic issues are discussed during the course, it does not require a background in economics. Rather, the course aims to help students in their first contact with economic theory and doctrines to understand the main principles of economics and evolution of contemporary economic systems. Economics evolved through a long process in which various thinkers through the dialogue with the works of their predecessors and their contemporaries with the aim to provide answers for pressing problems of society. This course emphasizes the historical context as well as the analytical contents of those theories, the evolution of economic thought and changing perspectives on the role of markets and the state in the economy. The course is built with a balance of historical and theoretical approaches in the study of practical issues.

History of Modern Time Political Theories

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Zrinka Erent-Sunko

doc. dr. sc.
Ivan Obadić

doc. dr. sc.
Miran Marelja

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 97199

Exam: written essay, oral

Contact email:
zrinka.erent.sunko@pravo.hr
ivan.obadic@pravo.hr
mmarelja@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course explores the fundamental issues of political and legal theories, beginning with the understanding of the causes of political theories emergence and their influence on the state and law. By reading past or present philosophical and political texts, students will examine the basic structure and formulated ideas of seminal works in political theory. Focusing on the intersections of political theory and law, emphasis is placed on the fundamental questions of jurisprudence in historical context, without losing awareness of the contemporary reality.

Human rights and atrocity crimes prevention

Lecturers

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Mario Krešić

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Barbara Preložnjak

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 191362

Exam: written and oral

Contact email:
mario.kresic@pravo.hr barbara.preloznjak@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course provides students with reasons for the rise of mass atrocity crimes in the world (genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes, ethnic cleansing). The risk factors and means how to prevent them will be discussed. The role of early warning and early implementing mechanisms as well as methods to improve them are analysed in particular.The course also introduces students to the current assessments which are aimed at improvement of structural and operational prevention measures.

Human Rights and Criminal Justice

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Zlata Đurđević

prof. dr. sc.
Elizabeta Ivičević Karas

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79165

Exam: oral

Contact email:
zlata.durdevic@pravo.hr
elizabeta.ivicevic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course introduces students with the European standards for the protection of human rights in the area of criminal procedural law and criminal justice in general, which have arisen out of the jurisprudence of the European Court for Human Rights in Strasbourg. In Europe, the system for the protection of human rights represents a multilevel structure which includes instruments originating from the framework of the United Nations, the Council of Europe, the European Union, and national constitutions.

Human Rights in the Digital Era

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Siniša Zrinščak

prof. dr. sc.
Iris Goldner Lang

prof. dr. sc.
Snježana Vasiljević

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Dario Čepo

Professor Joanna Kulesza (University of Łódź)

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 306687

Online lectures

Exam: presentation/report

Contact email:
sinisa.zrinscak@pravo.hr
iris.goldner@pravo.hr
snjezana.vasiljevic@pravo.hr
dario.cepo@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course analyses how digital social transformation affects understanding, application, and protection of human rights from European and global perspectives. This includes, in particular, the analysis of human rights protection in the digital environment, the connection between political regimes and human rights, freedom of speech, minority rights, migrants and asylum seekers' rights, gender issues, hate speech and discrimination on the internet.

Insolvency Law

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc.
Jasnica Garašić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79166

Exam: oral

Contact email: jasna.garasic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The subject comprises the subject-matter of bankruptcy law and the insolvency proceedings related to it: introduction to insolvency law, reasons to initiate insolvency proceedings, insolvent debtors, creditors of insolvent debtors, insolvency proceeding bodies, previous procedure and the opening of insolvency proceeding, procedure after the initiation of insolvency proceeding, conclusion and termination, insolvency plan, personal management, release from remaining obligations, bank insolvency proceedings, insolvency proceeding with an international character - international insolvency law.

Insurance Law

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc. Nikoleta Radionov Karlović

izv. prof. dr. sc. Mihael Mišo Mudrić

izv. prof. dr. sc. Iva Savić

prof. dr. sc. Jasenko Marin

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 186981

Exam: oral exam and written student presentation on a given topic

Contact email:
nikoleta.radionov@pravo.hr
miso.mudric@pravo.hr
iva.savic@pravo.hr
jasenko.marin@pravo.hr

Course Description

Insurance, in its broadest sense, plays an important role in everyday life of ordinary citizens and business entities. The modern commercial world and the market of goods and services is incomprehensible absent of quality insurance mechanisms. The long-term development of this legal field, as well as the broad field of everyday activities and needs, has produced a number of highly specialized insurance categories and types of insurance contracts. It is, therefore, necessary for each student - future lawyer - to learn and understand the basics of this large and import legal field, in order to ease managing and resolving the specific issues in connection to and terminology of Insurance Law.

International Air Law

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Iva Savić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 186988

Exam: oral

Contact email: iva.savic@pravo.hr

Course Description

Course “International Air Law” is designed for students who are interested in international air transport and all aviation-related topics. In this course, students have opportunity to learn on the concepts and rules of public and private international air law through a wide range of topics. The course covers most important legal topics for understanding international air transport – air freedoms, international air transport agreements, public and private international air law organizations, legal regulation of aviation safety and security, carriage of passengers by air, etc.

International Business Communication for Lawyers

Lecturer

doc. dr. sc.
Snježana Husinec

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 286752

Exam: written

Contact email: snjezana.husinec@pravo.hr

Course Description

With the increasing globalization of international relations, the need for very specific communication skills and competencies necessary for communication in an intercultural legal context is also growing. In order to communicate as effectively as possible with their clients, partners, and colleagues from other countries, legal professionals, whether in law firms, business, or judicial practice, must not only have excellent language skills but also develop additional communication skills that arise from the specifics of legal systems and languages, as well as cultural differences in conventions in written and oral legal communication and communication in the digital environment.
The aim of this course is to equip law students with effective international business communication skills in English. In the introductory lectures, students will become familiar with the specifics of international legal communication, the connection between comparative law and international legal communication, and the importance of intercultural communication competence for successful communication in the international business environment. Students will also learn to apply the method of componential analysis in written and oral contacts with international clients and partners. Furthermore, students will be introduced to the principles and techniques of basic communication skills (business correspondence – traditional and digital, legal writing, business negotiations, presentations, and communication at meetings in both physical and virtual spaces), as well as the specific language structures in English required by legal professionals in international business communication. In the main part of the course, the development and improvement of basic communication skills will be carried out through practical individual and group tasks, thus achieving the final goal of the course.

International Criminal Law

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Maja Munivrana

prof. dr. sc.
Ksenija Turković

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79168

Exam: written and oral

Contact email:
maja.munivrana@pravo.hr
ksenija.turkovic@pravo.hr

Course Description

Within this course students will be introduced to the notion and main features of international criminal law, its historical development and modern tendencies. The emphasis will be on the law and practice of international ad hoc tribunals and, in particular, of the permanent International Criminal Court. We will discuss the sources of ICL, international crimes, modes of individual criminal liability, proceedings before the ICC, victims' participation and protection, purpose and future of ICL. Given the dynamic development of this branch of law, the basic textbook will be enriched with excerpts from relevant judgments and decisions of international criminal courts and recent scientific articles. Students are expected to attend classes regularly and to read the literature designated for each class so that they can actively participate in class.

International Criminal Procedure

Lecturers

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Marin Bonačić

prof. dr. sc.
Zlata Đurđević

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 160358

Exam: oral

Contact email:
marin.bonacic@pravo.hr
zlata.durdevic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The aim of the course is to have student acquainted with the basic issues of international criminal procedure, such as questions of its purpose and objectives, principles and sources, and its subjects and rules of international criminal procedure. Also, the aim is to introduce students to the comparative legal solutions that have affected particular principles and institutes of international criminal procedure as well as to incorporated international and regional human rights standards.

Introduction to Croatian Legal History

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Ivan Kosnica

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Dunja Milotić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 286748

Exam: oral

Contact email:
ivan.kosnica@pravo.hr
dunja.pastovic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The legal system of the present-day Croatia would not be understood properly without sufficient awareness and knowledge of its historical roots and evolution. This course provides an introduction to main characteristics concerning Croatian legal system and development of Croatian legal institutions in their social and political environment.

The course is oriented towards understanding of Croatian legal and historical circumstances, legal institutions and legal regulation from the formation of the early medieval Croatian state until the modern times. Reconstruction of the up to the 19th century refers to a basic element essential for knowing and understanding the Croatian legal and political tradition. More attention is paid to the modern and contemporary period (19th - 21st centuries) in which the modern Croatian legal system was built. The main aim is to give the student general knowledge and basis for understanding of historical legal effects on Croatian law and the state until the contemporary period. The intention is to awaken an understanding of the context of modern law and clarify the fundamental principles of Croatian current legal culture, which are also the result of historical development and are themselves in constant change.

Introduction to Financial Law and Financial Science

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Jasna Bogovac

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 186977

Exam: written and oral

Contact email: jasna.bogovac@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course examines both theoretical and practical issues of Financial law and financial science, encompassing the theory of taxation as well as normative and practical issues of taxation. At the introductory level, the students will learn about the basic features of any tax: taxpayers, tax base, tax rates and tax preferences. Emphasis will be on three major tax forms: personal income tax, corporate income tax and value added tax, as well as tax procedure. The course will also address international taxation, namely tax treaties, tax avoidance, tax evasion and tax havens. Additionally, some of the most interesting ECJ and tax treaty cases will be analysed. The issues of budgetary law, public loan and public debt will also be discussed, in order to provide students with a full picture of the functioning of public finance system.

Introduction to Information Security

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Tihomir Katulić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 127647

Exam: written

Contact email:
tihomir.katulic@pravo.hr

Course Description

Within this course students will acquire fundamental understanding of information security and specific knowledge regarding legal, technical and organizational framework of information security in the digital domain. Students will be given insight into the quandaries of legal regulation of information security and relevant technology as well as industrial standards of information security on an European and global level. Through this course students will develop ability to critically understand, analyze and apply the legal framework of information security both in Croatian legal system and the EU and the USA.

Ius Commune - Foundations of European Private Legal Systems

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Tomislav Karlović

prof. dr. sc.
Ivan Milotić

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Henrik-Riko Held

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79170

Exam: oral

Contact email:
tomislav.karlovic@pravo.hr
ivan.milotic@pravo.hr
henrik.riko.held@pravo.hr

Course Description

Topics: Corpus Iuris Civilis - foundations of European private law tradition; Ius Commune: recieved Roman law as European common law; Ius Commune and civil law codifications; Pandektistik and modern European private law doctrine; Ius commune and Common Law; Ius commune and European Private Law.

Law of Artificial Intelligence Systems in Autonomous Vehicles

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Mihael Mišo Mudrić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 267266

Exam: oral

Contact email:
mihael.mudric@pravo.unizg.hr

Course Description

The automation of driving on roads and navigation in air and at sea is steadily becoming a reality in everyday life. The technology of automatizing dynamic control over a specific vehicle has been in development for many decades, the most advanced instances of such technology being visible in air and at the sea. The Law of Autonomous Vehicles is experiencing exponential growth and development. The International Maritime Organization is developing a code for maritime autonomous surface ships. Various jurisdictions have developed complex legislation related to the operation of unmanned aerial vehicles, and the European Union has prepared a package of legal instruments concerning the operation of unmanned aerial vehicles and their access to the market. In the road sector, the Society of Automobile Engineers and UNECE have developed specialized standards and regulation, whereas certain jurisdictions, such as numerous federal states in the United States of America and several other developed countries (such as United Kingdom, France, Germany, Israel, Singapore, South Korea, and others) have enacted specialized laws concerning the use of advanced algorithms for driving assistance and semi-autonomous diving systems.
The course will analyze the noted legal developments in depth, and provide wider outlook concerning the inter-connected issues such as the pending regulation of artificial intelligence utilized in the transport sector, insurance models that are capable of adhering to the particularities of autonomous vehicles, market-impact that the introduction of such technology brings, protection of data analyzed by the autonomous driving/navigation systems, and future projections regarding the impact of autonomous driving/navigation technology on transport policy and transport services.

LGBTQ Law and Politics

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Ksenija Turković

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Dario Čepo

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 248951

Exam:
Written exam /essay / independent work

Contact email:
ksenija.turkovic@pravo.hr
dario.cepo@pravo.hr

Course Description

Main goal of the course is to introduce students with concepts, theoretical underpinnings, and arguments surrounding LGBT* individuals using legal, sociological, and political science toolboxes. Further on, students will focus on acquiring methods for the analysis of legal and political forces shaping the current debate on LGBT* rights, including through critical reading of public policies, strategies, declarations, court judgements, and electoral programmes, on national, European, and global level. The course will juxtapose legal/judicial and political/legislative processes linked to expanding or shrinking of LGBT* rights, but will also point to their historical complementarity and interplay in order to show the inextricable link between politics and law within societies. After finishing this course students will possess a set of skills and know-how that will be of use for them both in the public and private sector, especially if they decide to work within the context of LGBT policies and rights, through the civil sector organisations, policy watchdogs, or independent agencies.

Organisation of the Judiciary

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Alan Uzelac

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Marko Bratković

dr. sc.
Juraj Brozović

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79159

Exam: oral

Contact email:
alan.uzelac@pravo.hr
marko.bratkovic@pravo.hr
juraj.brozovic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The subject comprises the subject-matter of the organisational civil procedural law; the organisation of courts and other state bodies that participate in performing the judiciary functions, as well as the organisation and structure of other state bodies and professions that contribute to the functioning of the judicature. Apart from the basic theoretical issues, the issues connected to practical problems in the functioning of the judiciary and the implementation of the judicial reforms are discussed within the subject.

Pension Schemes

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc.
Ivana Vukorepa

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 168697

Exam: written essay and oral exam

Contact email: ivana.vukorepa@pravo.hr

Course Description

The aim of the course is to teach students fundamentals on organizational, financial and regulatory aspects of various forms of private and public pension schemes and make them understand how they are conditioned by historical, economic, technological, demographic and socio-political conditions. Students will learn to identify the main problems and risks within a particular type of pension schemes, as well as within a pension system as a whole. They will be able to evaluate the potential effects of the reform solutions, regarding the social aim and the evaluation criteria (pension adequacy and affordability, system's sustainability, fairness and predictability).

Political Economy - Global Perspective

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc.
Nenad Rančić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 133433

Exam: written essay on a chosen topic and presentation

Contact email: nenad.rancic@pravo.hr

Course Description

Introduction to key economic theories, concepts and ideas, as well as investigation into their relevance to contemporary social and political issues on a local, national and global scale, by examining the key components of national and international economic systems. Although certain basic and important economic issues are discussed during the course, it does not require a background in economics. Rather, the course aims to help students in their first contact with economic theory to understand the main principles of economics and evolution of contemporary economic systems. The course is built with a balance of historical and theoretical approaches in the study of practical issues, such as an outline of history of economic thought, basic macroeconomic indicators, drivers of economic development as well as regional and international economic relations.

The aims of this course: Introduction to Economics for lawyers is designed to build an understanding of economic institutions, history, and principles, regardless of students previous knowledge and experience with economic science and the way of thinking. It will mainly focus on basic concepts of economic theory and relationship between private and public sectors of the economy. Also, it will analyze major economic institutions, such as property rights, markets, business organizations, labor unions, money and banking, trade, and taxation that are of practical interest for future lawyers. Economists have developed a set of widely applicable concepts and tools that are useful for understanding economic situations ranging from decisions that individuals make in everyday life to decisions made by firms and governments in complex markets. The objective of this course is to help students learn and understand these concepts and principles as well as to apply them to real life situations.

Privacy and Electronic Communications

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc.
Nina Gumzej

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 117234

Exam: written essay / problem tasks

Contact email: nina.gumzej@pravo.hr

Course Description

Privacy in electronic communications represents one of the most challenging, rapidly evolving and highly interdisciplinary legal and regulatory areas. As such it also encompasses a large number of diverse concerns, from those on our online identity and online tracking up to our right to be forgotten online and onwards to the mandatory retention of our communications data by the State. Throughout this course the students will be able to: 1) explain contemporary challenges for the protection of privacy and personal data protection in electronic communications as well as in the modern digital networked environment in general; 2) explain the logic and dynamics of the development of mentioned regulation at the domestic, EU and international level; 3) apply relevant sources of law to various problem situations with an impact on the right to privacy and data protection in the modern digital environment; 4) analyze the relevant CJEU and ECtHR case law; 5) evaluate proposals of the EU normative framework in the area; 6) draft professional legal opinions on the most recent concerns in the area.

Private Security Services and Law

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Mihael Mišo Mudrić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 133428

Exam: oral

Contact email:
mihael.mudric@pravo.unizg.hr

Course Description

The issue of security, traditionally under direct control and responsibility of states, came under severe scrutiny during the last two decades, due to, among other factors, a constant increase in private actors' engagement in providing security services in the private as well as public domain, often within a public private partnership structure.

The purpose of the course is to provide students with the understanding of principal concepts with regard the term security in the modern setting. The course will examine the national law experience in regulating the private security services, with special focus on the issues of licensing, registration, control, accountability, transparency and standards performance. The course will further analyses the civil and criminal responsibility of security service providers in comparison with public security service providers. Parallel to the national law regulation, the course will additionally examine both the international regulatory framework, as well as the self-regulation efforts made by the industry, inter-governmental and non-governmental organizations. A special focus will be devoted to the operation of private military and security companies in accordance with the International Law of Armed Conflict. Finally, the course will analyze current trends in the private security industry, such as is the provision of maritime security services, airport security services, cyber security services, policing services and services connected to the protection of critical infrastructure.

Public Policy

Lecturers

doc. dr. sc.
Petra Đurman

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Dario Čepo

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 248952

Exam: written essay / independent work

Contact email:
petra.durman@pravo.hr
dario.cepo@pravo.hr

Course Description

Main goals of the course are to introduce the students with tools and theoretical underpinnings necessary for understanding the logic and the characteristics of the policy-making process in general. Further on, students will be focused on acquiring methods for the analysis of public policies, including policy problems, goals, instruments, actors, outcomes and effects. In the end, students will possess a set of skills and know-how that will be of use for them both in the public and private sector, where knowledge of evidence-based public policy setting, as well as its implementation and oversight, is a comparative advantage.

Reforming Public Administration in the European Context

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Anamarija Musa

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Romea Manojlović Toman

prof. dr. sc.
Gordana Marčetić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 84050

Exam: written essay

Contact email:
anamarija.musa@pravo.hr
romea.manojlovic@pravo.hr
gordana.marcetic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course is intended to offer an extensive overview on current reforms of public administration in Europe, with particular emphasis on the changing patterns of the administrative development within (or due to) the EU membership. Students will be able to assess relative success of Croatian reform process within the European and EU realm.

Topics covered include managerial reforms and Europeanisation of public administration and administrative law; citizens rights and public administration (access to information, transparency, accountability); civil service, ethics in public sector, conflict of interest; public services privatisation and regulation, regulatory agencies; local and regional governments in European context; rulemaking and role of government in legislative process, public consultations, regulatory impact assessment, transposition of EU law.

Roman Private Law

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Tomislav Karlović

prof. dr. sc.
Ivan Milotić

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Henrik-Riko Held

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 290437

Exam: oral

Contact email:
tomislav.karlovic@pravo.hr
ivan.milotic@pravo.hr
henrik.riko.held@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course will provide an overview of the institutes of Roman private law as a foundation of the civil law systems. It will give the students the opportunity to learn and understand how, under which external and internal influences, different institutions, concepts and principles of private law were developed during the Roman legal history. It will be first presented the historical framework and the sources through which the law was created. Afterwards, according to the Gaius' tripartition, the basic notions of status law and family law will be studied. This will be followed with the analysis of property law and the law of obligations. In the latter, the focus will be on the individual sources of obligations, especially contracts, whereby, based on the exegesis of the primary sources, students will be given an insight in the modes of legal argumentation of Roman jurists. In the end, it will be given an overview of general principles and institutes of the law of inheritance and the Roman civil procedure. Providing the background, legal logic and arguments used in the development of Roman private law, the course should also enable students to better understand and critically evaluate the institutes of contemporary private law.

Settlement of Disputes through Arbitration and Mediation

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Davor Adrian Babić

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Dora Zgrabljić Rotar

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Tena Hoško

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79156

Exam: written and oral

Contact email:
davor.babic@pravo.hr
dora.zgrabljic.rotar@pravo.hr
tena.hosko@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course provides a unique combination of theoretical insight into alternative dispute resolution methods and the practical case study exercises. Students acquire knowledge on all relevant topics in arbitration and mediation – arbitration and mediation agreement, arbitrators, awards, settlement, setting aside of an award, recognition and enforcement of an award etc. Apart from academic readings, the students cover each topic through a hypothetical case study. The aim is to train the students to resolve international commercial disputes in mediation and arbitration and to appropriately apply the theoretical knowledge gained through the course in their professional activities. Students are graded based on the practical assignments given throughout the course and a final exercise in which they are provided an opportunity to roleplay a hypothetical arbitration hearing. The professors are academics that specialize in the field of private international law and international commercial arbitration who also actively serve as arbitrators.

The course is intended for students with prior legal knowledge, especially that of private law.

States of Emergency in Comparative Constitutional Law

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc.
Đorđe Gardašević

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 94322

Exam: written

Contact email:
dorde.gardasevic@pravo.hr

Course Description

States of emergency are one of the most important concepts in constitutional law. The key issues related to constitutional regulation of emergencies are: what are their causes; who declares them; which emergency measures may be imposed; how long they last; who decides on their ending; which bodies control emergency measures. In this course students will research and study the concept of states of emergency from a comparative perspective (e.g. USA, France, Germany, other European countries, Croatia etc.) and as it has been developing in theory and relevant case-law of superior (constitutional) courts.

The final evaluation is organized as an open-book written exam.

Transitional Justice

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Ksenija Turković

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Marin Bonačić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 4

Course code: 171407

Exam: written or oral
(student can choose)

Contact email:
ksenija.turkovic@pravo.hr
marin.bonacic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The objective of this Course is to introduce students to transitional justice and state capacity building. The notion of transitional justice comprises the full range of processes and mechanisms associated with a society's attempt to come to term with a legacy of large-scale human rights abuses in order to ensure accountability and serve justice, including accountability redress mechanisms. TJ measures include establishment of special courts (like ECtHR after WW2), criminal prosecutions, truth commissions, reparation programmes and various kinds of institutional reforms that will be addressed throughout the Course. Special attention will be given to corruption and state capture.

2. SOCIAL WORK COURSES

Comparative Social Policy

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc.
Ivana Dobrotić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 5

Course code: 86775

Exam: written

Contact email: ivana.dobrotic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course aims to provide students with understanding of different concepts and socio-economic and socio-political challenges in the field of comparative social policy, as well as of global social policy and governance, and historical foundations and characteristics of the welfare state regimes. It will provide students with knowledge on up-to-date social policy characteristics and reforms in comparative, international perspective with more detailed focus on the post-communist countries, particularly South East European countries.

Course content:
Comparative social policy - basic concepts
Methods in comparative social policy
Welfare state regimes - concept, development, typical representatives, limitations
Global social policy and governance Actors in social policy
Social policy in post-communism from a comparative perspective
Social policy in Croatia and South East European countries

International Social Work

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Nino Žganec

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Ana Opačić

Semester: Winter

ECTS: 5

Course code: 194053

Exam: written

Contact email:
nino.zganec@pravo.hr
ana.opacic@pravo.hr

Course Description

International social work will give an opportunity to process following topics:

1) contemporary processes as context for development of international social work: globalization, localization, universalism, indigenization and imperialism
2) Contemporary trends in the area of social, economic and ecological development
3) International social work: meaning, opportunities, needs and obstacles for development
4) International practice of social workers in the context of contemporary social problems
5) Prerequisites for the international practice of social workers: organizations, ideologies, political processes, theoretical background
6) Skills of Social Workers Involved in International Practice
7) Education of social workers at the international level
8) International Scientific Research in Social Work
9) Implementation of foreign practice at the national level: the example of Croatia

SUMMER SEMESTER

1. LAW COURSES

Children's Procedural Rights and Civil Justice

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Slađana Aras Kramar

prof. dr. sc.
Irena Majstorović

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Ivan Šimović

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 142165

Exam: oral

Contact email:
sladana.aras@pravo.hr
irena.majstorovic@pravo.unizg.hr
ivan.simovic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course focus is on children who participate in the civil justice system as parties and witnesses to the procedure. The practical implementation of the children's rights to be informed and to be heard in the justice system is a fundamental element of child-friendly justice.

Comparative Criminology

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Anna-Maria Getoš Kalac

doc. dr. sc.
Reana Bezić

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 186929

Exam:
presentation and essay

Contact email:
agetos@pravo.hr
rbezic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The main objective of this Course is to explore existing methods of studying crime on a global scale, and discuss various types of criminal and deviant behaviour that occur in isolated group contexts as well as those crimes that transcend country boundaries. It also will assess various strategies designed to address these acts of crime on a national as well as transnational level. The Course uses comparative methodology to highlight similarities and differences between and within legal traditions. It also will assess the different criminology researches and their outcomes and how these can inform criminal law reform in a national and global context. The Course will be taught as combination of lecturing and discussion of the course content in class, and it will be organized in interactive forum.

Comparative Legal Linguistics

Lecturers

doc. dr. sc.
Snježana Husinec

dr. sc.
Marijana Javornik-Čubrić

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79154

Exam: oral

Contact email:
snjezana.husinec@pravo.hr
marijana.javornik.cubric@pravo.hr

Course Description

Law is an overwhelmingly linguistic institution. It is realized and communicated through language. Therefore, it is important for legal professionals to know how legal language works. This course provides an introduction to legal language and linguistics for students of law. It examines characteristics and functions of legal language in different legal contexts, legal translation and terminology. Attention is also paid to development of major European legal languages.

Constitutional and Political History of Yugoslavia: from Formation to Dissolution

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Ivan Kosnica

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Dunja Milotić

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 238190

Exam: oral

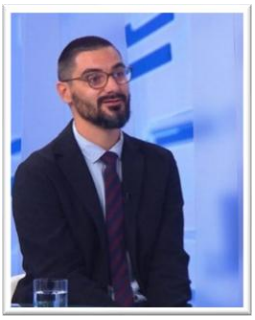

Contact email:
ivan.kosnica@pravo.hr
dunja.pastovic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course gives an introduction to the constitutional, legal and political history of Yugoslavia beginning with its formation as the unitary authoritarian Kingdom, through its renovation as the multi-ethnic communist federation, up to its dissolution and formation of the new nation-states. The course will examine the concepts of integration of multi-ethnic society and why they failed. The course will be focused on organization of power and political system but it will also look at relevant ideologies, types of ownership and control of economy, rights of citizens, and respective international environment, with particular attention to the process of dissolution. The principal aim of the course is to give the student basis for deeper understanding of political and institutional reality that emerged with a break-down of Yugoslavia as well as to help in better understanding of the nation-building tendencies elsewhere in Europe and the World.

Criminal Law of the European Union

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Zoran Burić

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79162

Exam: oral

Contact email:
zoran.buric@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course looks into the competences of the European Union in the area of criminal law. For a long time, criminal law has been considered an issue which falls within the exclusive competence of the Member States of the EU. However, during the historical development of the European integration process, it became obvious that it is necessary for the EU to have competences in the area of criminal law, if it wants to ensure effective application of its policies in matters which fall within its competence. The course looks at the current competences of the EU in the area of criminal law, with particular focus on judicial cooperation in criminal matters, harmonization of national criminal laws and and EU institutions established in the area.

Cybersecurity and Cybecrime

Lecturers

izv. prof.dr.sc.
Marko Jurić

izv. prof.dr.sc.
Tihomir Katulić

prof. dr. sc.
Nina Gumzej

prof. dr. sc.
Hrvoje Lisičar

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 139573

Exam: oral

Contact email:
marko.juric@pravo.hr
tihomir.katulic@pravo.hr
nina.gumzej@pravo.hr
hrvoje.lisicar@pravo.hr

Course Description

Cybersecurity is an issue which transcends legal regulation. Its achievement depends on the proper implementation and use of a series of technical, procedural, organizational and legal measures. On the other side, fighting cybercrime is becoming an increasingly important task of legal science and legislation, in terms of prevention, detection and repression. However, there is also a need to reconcile the effectiveness of cybercrime prosecution with the need to ensure fulfillment of fundamental human rights.

Development of European Integration and Institutions

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Zrinka Erent-Sunko

doc. dr. sc.
Ivan Obadić

doc. dr. sc.
Miran Marelja

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 97213

Exam: oral and written

Contact email:
zrinka.erent.sunko@pravo.hr
ivan.obadic@pravo.hr
mmarelja@pravo.hr

Course Description

This course examines the origins and development of European integration since the turn of the 20th century. The first section of the course considers the antecedents of integration before 1914 and in the Interwar period. It provides a comparative basis for the second part, which focuses on the decade between the Marshall Plan and the Treaties of Rome. The final part of the course deals with the European Communities from their foundation until the Treaty of Maastricht and the evolution and role of the European Union law and institutions in the European Integration process. Through examining the key moments in the political and institutional development of European integration, students will gain a comprehensive and systematic understanding of the history of the EU and better insight into contemporary political and economic relations in Europe, the EU legal system and the process of decision making in the European Union.

Development of International Law

Lecturers

doc. dr. sc.
Rutvica Rusan Novokmet

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Henrik-Riko Held

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 86140

Exam: oral

Contact email:
rutvica.rusan@pravo.hr
henrik.riko.held@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course tends to provide an overview of the historical development of international law through the analysis of legal doctrine and basic concepts of international law throughout history (antiquity, middle ages, early modern period and contemporary period). Recent tendencies in the development of international law are also analyzed with particular emphasis on the codification of international law under the auspices of the United Nations.

Economic Analysis of Law

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc.
Ozren Pilipović

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 150199

Exam: written essay

Contact email: ozren.pilipovic@pravo.hr

Course Description

Introduction to key theories, concepts, tools of economic analysis of law, as well as investigation into their relevance to contemporary social and legal issues, by examining the key components of national and international legal systems, with the focus on differences between american and european approach to the same issues. Although certain important and rather complex economic issues are discussed during the course, it does not require a background in economics. Rather, the course aims to help in understanding the nature of the relationship between the law and the economics in the evolution of contemporary legal systems. The course is built with a balance of historical and theoretical approaches in the study of practical issues, such as transaction costs, externalities, competition, game theory, welfare state and public choice theory.

The aims of this course are:

To examine critically and to give students an insight into the methods and tools of economic analysis of law by which it could assess the impact of the legal system to the economic well-being of individual members of society, as well as the community as a whole, with special emphasis on the sources and the effectiveness of the application of law in countries in transition. Finally, in addition to transmitting knowledge, the goal is to develop students' capacity for analytical thinking and problem-solving approach to research the effects of legal norms and the award and provide them with the theoretical tools to help them assess their economic efficiency and impact.

Economic Criminal Law

Lecturers

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Aleksandar Maršavelski

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Marta Dragičević Prtenjača

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 96816

Exam: oral or written (optional)

Contact email:
aleksandar.marsavelski@pravo.hr
marta.dragicevic@pravo.hr

Course Description

This course is designed for students interested in studying the criminal law's application to what is sometimes called "white collar crime." The offenses often involve conduct by organizations and individuals in which the primary goal is to gain pecuniary gain, in general without violence. Also, we will adress political- white collar and elite-power crimes. Much of the conduct involves seemingly ordinary business transactions, and is engaged in by those with substantial economic resources and advantages (i.e. the rich getting richer).

Electronic Media Law

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc. Hrvoje Lisičar

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 117233

Exam: oral or written (optional)

Contact email: hrvoje.lisicar@pravo.hr

Course Description

Teaching units of course are: 1. Introduction: historical development, sources and competences, meaning and importance of electronic media, various aspects of regulation of electronic media, 2. Development of electronic media in the context of information society, influence of high technologies on electronic media development, 3. Convergence of technology, various forms of convergence, influence of convergence on legal framework for electronic media, technological neutrality of legislation for electronic media, 4. Regulatory framework for electronic communications in the EU and Republic of Croatia - basic principles, terms, regulation of technical foundations for broadcasting of electronic media (frequencies, IPTV, universal access, interconnections), 5. Digital dividend and net neutrality - influence on regulation of electronic media services, 6. Regulatory framework for electronic media - comparative analysis of EU and Croatian legislation, 7.Audiovisual media services (linear services) and audiovisual media services on demand (non-linear services), different tiers of rules, 8.Legal regulation of electronic publications as defined in Croatian Electronic media Act, comparative analysis of different approaches in regulation of electronic media content on the Internet, 9.Audiovisual media services regulatory bodies, real and formal independency, various functions of regulatory bodies, 10. Pluralism and diversity of electronic media in information society, importance of pluralism and influence of new technologies, 11. Legal protection of broadcasting, conditional access, aggregation of content, 12. Electronic media and right to privacy, protection of personal data in electronic media, how new technologies influence freedom of speech.

EU Internal Market Law

Lecturers

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Melita Carević Nožica

prof. dr. sc.
Iris Goldner Lang

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79161

Exam: written

Contact email:
melita.carevic@pravo.hr
iris.goldner@pravo.hr

Course Description

Understanding the EU internal market law is the key to understanding how the EU really works. This course focuses on the four fundamental market freedoms that represent the cornerstone of EU integration – free movement of goods, persons, services and capital. The course also covers EU citizenship and analyses difficulties in striking the appropriate balance between the interests of the internal market, on the one hand, and national regulatory autonomy, on the other

EU Substantive Criminal Law and Protection of Victims

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Maja Munivrana

prof. dr. sc.
Ksenija Turković

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Aleksandar Maršavelski

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 96811

Exam: oral or written (optional)

Contact email:
maja.munivrana@pravo.hr
ksenija.turkovic@pravo.hr
aleksandar.marsavelski@pravo.hr

Course Description

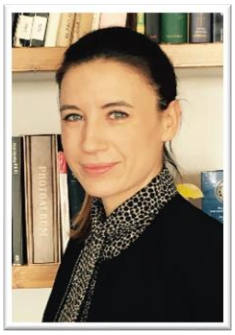

The main objective of this course, which was introduced as a Jean Monnet module, is to transfer advanced knowledge and understanding of the EU Substantive Criminal Law and Protection of Victims. As to methodology, the course will represents a forum for academic debate and develop problem-solving abilities and critical thinking. It will be taught as a combination of case solving, lecturing and discussions, in an interactive form and students will be encouraged to debate, comment, and ask questions during the class.

European Private International Law

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Davor Adrian Babić

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Dora Zgrabljić Rotar

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Tena Hoško

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79163

Exam: assignments during the semester and presentations

Contact email:
davor.babic@pravo.hr
dora.zgrabljic.rotar@pravo.hr
tena.hosko@pravo.hr

Course Description

The objective of the course is to teach students how to deal with situations with an international element. The focus of the course is on the EU legislation, but students are also given a broad introduction into Private International Law in general. Within the subject European Private International Law all categories of private international law rules are examined: the jurisdictional rules, the conflict-of-laws rules and the rules on recognition and enforcement, focusing on contractual and non-contractual obligations. After the course the students should be able to apply those rules independently, understanding how they function and how the CJEU has interpreted them.

The course is intended for students with prior legal knowledge, especially that of private law.

French for Lawyers

Lecturer: external associate from the French Embassy in Zagreb

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 171160

Exam: written exam, attendance, presentations

Contact email: irena.horvatic.bilic@pravo.hr

Course Description

Are you a future lawyer and do you speak good French? This module is made for you if you want to know more about French political and judicial life; if you want to understand cases and trials in French; if you want to improve your argumentation and presentation skills and have a try at pleading for someone à la française!

The course is open for all interested domestic and Erasmus students, whose general knowledge of French language is at least on the level B2.

Fundamental Rights and Freedoms in Comparative Constitutional Law

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc.
Đorđe Gardašević

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 143031

Exam: written

Contact email: dorde.gardasevic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The concept of "fundamental" rights and freedoms in constitutional law must conform to certain essential conditions: rights and freedoms are not only political proclamations; they are protected through legally binding norms having constitutional character; their regulation is subject to judicial review under specific constitutional tests (e.g. proportionality, strict scrutiny etc.). In this course students will research and study the said concept from a comparative perspective (e.g. USA, France, Germany, other European countries, Croatia etc.) and as it has been developing in theory and relevant case-law of superior (constitutional) courts. The final evaluation is organized as an open-book written exam.

Fundamental Rights in the European Union

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc.
Snježana Vasiljević

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 84073

Exam: oral

Contact email: snjezana.vasiljevic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The main objective of the course is to develop advanced understanding of methodology and practice of protection of fundamental rights in the European union. Within this general objective students will learn about the theoretical foundation of fundamenal rights, their normative ordering and how are they incorporated into the law of the EU. The course will present evolution of judicial protection of fundamental rights before the European Court of Justice, how are they crystallized in its case law and codified by the Founding Treaties and secondary legislation.

History of Modern Time Political Theories

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Zrinka Erent-Sunko

doc. dr. sc.
Ivan Obadić

doc. dr. sc.
Miran Marelja

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 97199

Exam: written essay, oral

Contact email:
zrinka.erent.sunko@pravo.hr
ivan.obadic@pravo.hr
mmarelja@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course explores the fundamental issues of political and legal theories, beginning with the understanding of the causes of political theories emergence and their influence on the state and law. By reading past or present philosophical and political texts, students will examine the basic structure and formulated ideas of seminal works in political theory. Focusing on the intersections of political theory and law, emphasis is placed on the fundamental questions of jurisprudence in historical context, without losing awareness of the contemporary reality.

Introduction to Croatian Criminal Justice System

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Maja Munivrana

prof. dr. sc.
Elizabeta Ivičević Karas

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 186920

Exam: written and oral

Contact email:
maja.munivrana@pravo.hr
elizabeta.karas.ivicevic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The main objective of the course is to introduce students to Croatian criminal justice system. It aims exclusively at foreign exchange students, who will get the opportunity for the first time at the Faculty of Law in Zagreb to learn about Croatian criminal justice in a comprehensive and integrated manner. Throughout the course, the students learn about the basic concepts of Croatian substantive criminal law, general principles of criminal liability, justifications and other grounds of impunity, various types of criminal offences and the sanctioning system, Croatian criminal procedure, including judicial organisation, stages of penal process, powers, rights and duties of different subjects, legal remedies, as well as about the prison system and execution and extinction of sentences in general.

Introduction to Democracy

Lecturers

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Dario Čepo

doc. dr.sc.
Mateja Čehulić

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 240877

Exam: written essay / independent research paper

Contact email:
dario.cepo@pravo.hr
mateja.cehulic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The aim of the course is to familiarize students with the concepts of democracy, democratization and the democratic regression, both from philosophical and sociological, as well as political, legal and economic scientific traditions.
Through this course, students will learn the key differences between types of democracy, how to critically valorize different aspects of the democratization process, as well as how to interpret the limits of democracy in modern time society. Using concrete examples, they will be able to understand how democracy works, i.e. how actors and institutions within the political and legal system influence the establishment, strengthening and abolition of democracy. Also, students will learn how to draw conclusions about processes and phenomena on a global scale that influence the phenomenon of democratic regression and how to slow down or prevent this regression.

Introduction to Family Law

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Aleksandra Korać Graovac

prof. dr. sc.
Irena Majstorović

prof. dr. sc.
Anica Čulo Margaletić

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Ivan Šimović

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Barbara Preložnjak

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 156222

Exam: presentation and written essay

Contact email:
aleksandra.korac.graovac@pravo.unizg.hr
irena.majstorovic@pravo.unizg.hr
anica.culo.margaletic@pravo.unizg.hr
ivan.simovic@pravo.hr
barbara.preloznjak@pravo.unizg.hr

Course Description

The objective of the course is to inform the students of the most important family law issues, such as marriage, adoption or maintenance, as well as their significance in contemporary society. Students would be furthermore informed of the trends in the family law, especially from a comparative perspective. Particular attention would be paid to the issues of harmonisation and unification of family law in Europe.

Ius Commune - Foundations of European Private Legal Systems

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Tomislav Karlović

prof. dr. sc.
Ivan Milotić

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Henrik-Riko Held

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79170

Exam: oral

Contact email:
tomislav.karlovic@pravo.hr
ivan.milotic@pravo.hr
henrik.riko.held@pravo.hr

Course Description

Topics: Corpus Iuris Civilis - foundations of European private law tradition; Ius Commune: recieved Roman law as European common law; Ius Commune and civil law codifications; Pandektistik and modern European private law doctrine; Ius commune and Common Law; Ius commune and European Private Law

Jurisdiction and the Role of the European Court of Justice

Lecturer

dr. sc.
Davor Petrić

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 171405

Exam: written or oral

Contact email: davor.petric@pravo.hr

Course Description

Many EU law courses devote a lot of attention to examination of the case law through which the EU legal order has mainly developed. Obviously, the most important institution that steered that development is the Court of Justice of the EU. But equally important are its main interlocutors – national courts – who were in many cases 'complicit' in the establishment of some of the fundamental doctrines and principles of EU law. So, in this course we will discuss the current organisation and functioning of the EU judicial system, in particular the powers and decision-making process of the Court of Justice, but also its relationship with national courts and their role in judicial development of EU law. This, among other things, will enable better understanding of other courses that focus on specific areas of EU law.

Maritime and Transport Law

Lecturers

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Mihael Mišo Mudrić

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Iva Savić

prof. dr. sc.
Jasenko Marin

prof. dr. sc.
Nikoleta Radionov Karlović

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 8

Course code: 159430

Exam: oral

Contact email:
miso.mudric@pravo.hr
iva.savic@pravo.hr
jasenko.marin@pravo.hr
nikoleta.radionov@pravo.hr

Course Description

The purpose of the coure is to provide basic knowledge on land, air, maritime and internal waters navigation law, on an international, EU and domestic level, as well as on the transport services market organization and infrastructure management in the whole transport industry.

Multi-Level Governance and Regional Development

Lecturers

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Mihovil Škarica

doc. dr. sc.
Iva Lopižić

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 5

Course code: 142167

Exam: Written exam / essay / presentation

Contact email:
mihovil.skarica@pravo.hr
iva.lopizic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The aim of the course is to introduce the students to the organization and functioning of the structural instruments of the European Union. Also, the students are introduced to the basic ideas required for the understanding of multi-level governance theoretical concept and the comprehension of the EU regional policy (regional policy, regional development, regionalism, regional self-government, EU structural funds, absorption capacity, multi-level decision-making).

Outline of EU Employment and Social Security Law

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Ivana Grgurev

prof. dr. sc.
Viktor Gotovac

prof. dr. sc.
Ivana Vukorepa

doc. dr. sc.
Iva Bjelinski Radić

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 94484

Exam: essay presentation or oral exam

Contact email:
ivana.grgurev@pravo.hr
viktor.gotovac@pravo.unizg.hr ivana.vukorepa@pravo.hr
iva.bjelinski.radic@pravo.unizg.hr

Course Description

In the introductionto the course a historical development, sources and competences of EU employment and social security law are explained. Furthermore, the course deals with the following topics: The concept of employee in the EU law; Contracts of Employment: Fixed and part-time work; Working time; Equality and prohibition of discrimination; Termination of Employment; Freedom of association; Industrial actions; Transfer of undertakings; Information and consultation of employees; Maternity rights; Parental leave; Freedom of movement for workers; Social security and pension rights.

Privacy and Electronic Communications

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc.
Nina Gumzej

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 117234

Exam: written essay / problem tasks

Contact email: nina.gumzej@pravo.hr

Course Description

Privacy in electronic communications represents one of the most challenging, rapidly evolving and highly interdisciplinary legal and regulatory areas. As such it also encompasses a large number of diverse concerns, from those on our online identity and online tracking up to our right to be forgotten online and onwards to the mandatory retention of our communications data by the State. Throughout this course the students will be able to: 1) explain contemporary challenges for the protection of privacy and personal data protection in electronic communications as well as in the modern digital networked environment in general; 2) explain the logic and dynamics of the development of mentioned regulation at the domestic, EU and international level; 3) apply relevant sources of law to various problem situations with an impact on the right to privacy and data protection in the modern digital environment; 4) analyze the relevant CJEU and ECtHR case law; 5) evaluate proposals of the EU normative framework in the area; 6) draft professional legal opinions on the most recent concerns in the area.

Reforming Public Administration in the European Context

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Anamarija Musa

izv. prof. dr. sc. Romea Manojlović Toman

prof. dr. sc.
Gordana Marčetić

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 84050

Exam: written essay

Contact email:
anamarija.musa@pravo.hr
romea.manojlovic@pravo.hr
gordana.marcetic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course is intended to offer an extensive overview on current reforms of public administration in Europe, with particular emphasis on the changing patterns of the administrative development within (or due to) the EU membership. Students will be able to assess relative success of Croatian reform process within the European and EU realm.

Topics covered include managerial reforms and Europeanisation of public administration and administrative law; citizens rights and public administration (access to information, transparency, accountability); civil service, ethics in public sector, conflict of interest; public services privatisation and regulation, regulatory agencies; local and regional governments in European context; rulemaking and role of government in legislative process, public consultations, regulatory impact assessment, transposition of EU law.

Rights of Minorities in Europe

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Antonija Petričušić

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 201647

Exam: presentation and written essay

Contact email: antonija.petricusic@pravo.hr

Course Description

This course will introduce to law students an up-to-date account of the relevant international legal standards for protection of the rights of national minorities and the developments in supervisory practice of monitoring bodies. Apart from the Council of Europe`s legally binding instruments developed to protect and promote rights of national minorities and to protect and preserve regional and minority languages in Europe, the OSCE High Commissioner on National Minorities thematic Recommendations and Guidelines developed to address ethnic tensions and to prevent hostilities over national minority issues will be thoroughly examined.

Roman Private Law

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Tomislav Karlović

prof. dr. sc.
Ivan Milotić

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Henrik-Riko Held

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 290437

Exam: oral

Contact email:
tomislav.karlovic@pravo.hr
ivan.milotic@pravo.hr
henrik.riko.held@pravo.hr

Course Description

The course will provide an overview of the institutes of Roman private law as a foundation of the civil law systems. It will give the students the opportunity to learn and understand how, under which external and internal influences, different institutions, concepts and principles of private law were developed during the Roman legal history. It will be first presented the historical framework and the sources through which the law was created. Afterwards, according to the Gaius' tripartition, the basic notions of status law and family law will be studied. This will be followed with the analysis of property law and the law of obligations. In the latter, the focus will be on the individual sources of obligations, especially contracts, whereby, based on the exegesis of the primary sources, students will be given an insight in the modes of legal argumentation of Roman jurists. In the end, it will be given an overview of general principles and institutes of the law of inheritance and the Roman civil procedure. Providing the background, legal logic and arguments used in the development of Roman private law, the course should also enable students to better understand and critically evaluate the institutes of contemporary private law.

Sociology of Croatian Society

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Siniša Zrinščak

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Antonija Petričušić

izv. prof.dr.sc.
Dario Čepo

doc. dr. sc.
Stjepka Popović

doc. dr. sc.
Mateja Čehulić

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 79174

Exam: written essay

Contact email:
sinisa.zrinscak@pravo.hr
antonija.petricusic@pravo.hr
dario.cepo@pravo.hr
stjepka.popovic@pravo.hr
mateja.cehulic@pravo.hr

Course Description

Through analysis of the main sociological aspects of modern Croatian society, the course provides an understanding of its trajectory in its historical perspective, particularly the transition from socialism to capitalism. It also focuses on other major social changes that influence Croatian society's development, such as globalization, Europeanization, climate change, etc., enabling a comparative outlook with other societies. Following main structures and institutions of modern Croatian society are covered in the course: social inequalities, dominant values, family relations, youth, religion, political system, political culture, civil society, and judiciary.

Victimology

Lecturers

prof. dr. sc.
Anna-Maria Getoš Kalac

doc. dr. sc.
Reana Bezić

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 186931

Exam:
presentation and written essay

Contact email:
agetos@pravo.hr
rbezic@pravo.hr

Course Description

The main objective of this Course is to present an overview of the history and theory of victimology. Analysis of victimization patterns with special emphasis on types of victims and crimes. The interaction between victims of crime and the criminal justice system with respect to the role of the victim and the services offered to the victim. This Course will also deal with the central concepts, research methods commonly used, as well as, giving an orientation into current research within the field (e.g. International Crime Victim Surveys (ICVS)). This includes research on the victim-offender overlap, theories about the victimization of different groups and the consequences related to victimization. The Course will be taught as combination of lecturing and discussion of the course content in class, and it will be organized in interactive forum.

Women's Rights

Lecturers

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Ana Horvat Vuković

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Antonija Petričušić

prof. dr. sc.
Ksenija Turković

prof. dr. sc.
Maja Munivrana

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 218159

Exam: written essay on a chosen topic and presentation

Contact email:
ana.horvat.vukovic@pravo.unizg.hr
antonija.petricusic@pravo.hr
ksenija.turkovic@pravo.hr
maja.munivrana@pravo.hr

Course Description

The purpose of the course is to expose students to the social, political, economic and legal issues that influence women's position in the society and to provide a comprehensive understanding of the underlying societal structures and power relations that define and influence women's ability to enjoy their human rights.

2. SOCIAL WORK COURSES

Contemporary approaches in the integration of science and practice of social work

Lecturers

izv. prof. dr. sc. Jelena Ogresta
izv. prof. dr. sc. Ana Opačić

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 3

Course code: 239542

Contact email:
jelena.ogresta@pravo.hr
ana.opacic@pravo.hr

Exam: written and oral

Course Description

The elective course Contemporary approaches in the integration of science and practice of social work has an aim to introduce students to science-based models of social work practice and to encourage students to apply contemporary methodology for practice-based research The course is opened to students that have at least basic knowledge in field of reserach methodology. The course is opened for social work students, but also those outside social work that are intersted in applied and engaged reserach or want to be familiarized with logics of evidence- based practice.

Expected learning outcomes at the level of the course are: 1. Differentiate professional decision-making based on scientific in relation to non-scientific knowledge; 2. Understand the scientific evidence that informs practice and that comes from multiple sources; 3. Analyze the advantages and disadvantages of different approaches in research of social work practice; 4. Justify the choice of a particular approach for practice-based research; 5. Predict ethical and cultural specifics and challenges of conducting engaged research in social work; 6. Understand the process of translating research results into practice; 7. Analyze innovations in social work practice from the perspective of the interconnectedness of science and practice

Classes will be held in a form of weekly interactive lectures (2 hours) or individualised consultative class for groups with less than five students. The final exam will be in a form of written exam where students will apply their knowledge on given examples.

Fundamentals of Crisis Intervention in Social Work

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Linda Rajhvajn Bulat

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 3

Course code: 299110

Exam: Online homeworks, written and oral exam

Contact email:
linda.rajhvajn@pravo.hr

Course Description

Distinguishing between the concepts of stress, trauma, and crisis.
Stressful and traumatic events and their consequences.
Crisis events and crisis as a psychological state.
Natural disasters and crisis.
Psychosocial support and psychological first aid following crisis events.
Psychological crisis interventions.
Fundamentals of debriefing and brief trauma integration.
Professional support following traumatic events and during the grieving process.
Specificities of working with children and young people in states of crisis and grief.

Interpersonal Communication

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Lucija Vejmelka

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 139597

Exam: written and oral

Contact email: lucija.vejmelka@pravo.hr

Course Description

Within the course students will gain knowledge about interpersonal communication and the significance of communication skills for social work. Students will develop skills of recognising patterns of communication, active listening, observation and speech, giving and receiving feedback, forming I-message and asking questions.

Social innovations and social change

Lecturers

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Danijel Baturina

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Jelena Matančević

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 3

Course code: 248954

Exam: written (project assignment) and oral

Contact email:
danijel.baturina@pravo.hr
jelena.matancevic@pravo.hr

Course Description

After successfully completing the course, students will be able to:
Define social innovations and their main characteristics, understand the concept of social experiment
Analyse social innovations contribution to social change in different areas
Analyse the state and potential of social innovations in social policy and social work Critically assess the state and impact of social innovations in the Croatian socio-cultural context
Plan of different phases of social innovations development
Propose different tools for development and transfer of social innovations

Social Work in Virtual Environment

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Lucija Vejmelka

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 3

Course code: 160074

Exam: written

Contact email: lucija.vejmelka@pravo.hr

Course Description

Students will gain knowledge about new risks of virtual environments important for social work practice. They will gain insight into the various practices of social work in a virtual environment. They will learn specific ethical principles related to social work practice in a virtual environment and the use of modern technologies. Course objectives are to introduce students to the possibilities of contemporary helping practices through modern technologies, new risks in an online environment, digital competencies relevant for helping professions and specific ethical standards in the use of modern technologies in professional practice. During the course of the module, the following topics will be addressed and developed: Impact of technology on everyday life, Social networks, Problematic Internet use: Internet violence, internet addiction, online gambling, online gaming, online sexual exploitation of children, Online environment and technology use in helping practices, Ethics of professional practice in online environment The course contributes to the learning outcomes at the program level: Students adopt modern methods and techniques of working with different user groups and specific ethical principles of social work in a virtual environment. Also, the subject contributes to the development of critical thinking of students, ability to work independently and effectively work in a team, the ability of oral and written presentation of the results of work and respect for diversity and multiculturalism.

Subjective child well-being

Lecturers

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Linda Rajhvajn Bulat

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Lucija Vejmelka

Semester: Summer

ECTS: 4

Course code: 210232

Exam: written

Contact email:
linda.rajhvajn@pravo.hr
lucija.vejmelka@pravo.hr

Course Description

Topics:
Subjective well-being of children and professional interventions
Professional ethics and subjective well-being of children
Professional interventions aimed at the subjective well-being of children Achieving children's subjective well-being through multidisciplinary cooperation Teaching methods: Lecture, interactive discussion, work in subgroups, solving individual tasks, synchronous and asynchronous forms of e-learning, educational media content, written assignments.